Chapter 378: The Creation of Arch-Celestials and Arch-Dragons

Ashborn and Sung Su-Ho, in their newfound realms, began to shape their divine legacies further, expanding their power by creating celestial and dragon beings who would serve as their elite commanders and warriors.

Ashborn's Arch-Celestials

Ashborn, the True Celestial Being, sought to establish his divine presence even further by creating eight Arch-Celestials from the purest of lights. These Arch-Celestials were beings of immense power, who would serve as his closest aides, each entrusted with specific responsibilities in maintaining the balance of his domain and enforcing his will.

List of Ashborn's Arch-Celestials:

1. Bearer of Ashborn's Throne (Nameless)

2. Bearer of Ashborn's Throne (Nameless)

3. Bearer of Ashborn's Throne (Nameless)

4. Bearer of Ashborn's Throne (Nameless)

5. The Celestial Enforcer

6. The Light Bringer

7. The Divine Judge

8. The Guardian of the Celestial Realm

After the creation of these Arch-Celestials, Ashborn then forged centillions of celestial armies from the brightest of light, all invisible and invincible, ensuring that his celestial warriors were beyond any threat, capable of overwhelming any foes that dared to approach his divine realm.

Together, the Arch-Celestials and their celestial armies would defend the True Celestial Realm, spreading Ashborn’s will across the multiverse.

Sung Su-Ho's Arch-Dragons

Meanwhile, in his own True Dragon God Realm, Sung Su-Ho, the True Dragon God, used his mastery over black flames to create eight Arch-Dragons, magnificent and terrifying beings, each a manifestation of his dark and fiery essence. These Arch-Dragons would serve as Sung Su-Ho's highest commanders and carry out his will across the dragon realms and beyond.

List of Sung Su-Ho's Arch-Dragons:

1. Bearer of Sung Su-Ho's Throne (Nameless)
2. Bearer of Sung Su-Ho's Throne (Nameless)
3. Bearer of Sung Su-Ho's Throne (Nameless)
4. Bearer of Sung Su-Ho's Throne (Nameless)
5. The Wyrm of the Abyss
6. The Ember Tyrant
7. The Infernal Sovereign
8. The Dragon of the Eternal Flame

After the creation of the Arch-Dragons, Sung Su-Ho then summoned centillions of dragon armies from black flames, each dragon warrior powerful, invisible, and invincible. These dragon armies would serve as the fierce protectors of the True Dragon God Realm and be deployed to defend the multiverse from any malevolent forces that might arise.

The Arch-Dragons and their dragon armies were as untouchable as the essence of Sung Su-Ho himself, an unstoppable force that would carry out his divine will for eternity.

The Divine Expansion

With the creation of these celestial and dragon forces, Ashborn and Sung Su-Ho solidified their positions as two of the most powerful beings in the multiverse. Their celestial armies, led by the Arch-Celestials, and their dragon armies, led by the Arch-Dragons, would continue to uphold their respective realms and defend the Heavenly Realm, ensuring the divine order maintained under the will of the Divine Triad.

Together with the Nine Divine Dragons, the Archangels, the Dark Archangels, and the many other divine beings, the multiverse was now firmly under the protection of the most powerful entities ever to exist.